

The individual-tree index series for the KHAD site produced as fractional deviations from a single “all-site” (i.e. Yamal_All) RCS curve. Note that the gaps in some series occur because these ring-width data were acquired from densitometric measurements of sample cores and not from direct measurement of ring width.